The Presiding Officer (Senator Aikin in the Chair) called the Senate to order as In Legislative Session at 9:00 o'clock a.m. for the purpose of the presentation of a portrait of the President of the United States, pursuant to provisions of S. R. No. 504 previously adopted by the Senate.

The President of the United States, Lyndon Baines Johnson, was escorted to the President's Rostrum by Senators Herring, Kazen, Bates, Word, Blanchard and Kennard.

The Presiding Officer presented Senator Krueger and he introduced the following as donors of the portrait of President Lyndon Baines Johnson and other distinguished special guests on the occasion of the unveiling of the portrait of the President as follows:

Mr. President, Members of the Senate, we are honored today to have with us on the Senate floor a group of gallant sons and daughters of our great State of Texas.

First, we are especially pleased to have with us those who by their labor of love and devotion to our great leader have made possible the creation of the portrait to be unveiled here this morning:

Cecil E. Burney, Corpus Christi; Ben H. Carpenter, Dallas; Harry Jersig, San Antonio; J. M. Dellinger, Corpus Christi; Hugh A. Fitzsimmons, Jr., San Antonio; Reese Harrison, San Antonio; W. W. Heath, Austin; Leonard Hyatt, San Antonio; Eugene M. Locke, Dallas; Judge J. C. Looney, Edinburg; C. T. McLaughlin, Snyder; Wm. Hunter McLean, Fort Worth; Bedford Wynne, Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. John Lapham and their children, Virginia, Dickey and Candy.

Next, we are honored to have with us the artist whose work we shall see in a moment, David Philip Wilson.

With him is Paul A. Loftin, who has watched over his work of art at our State Library.

With us to add dignity and charm to this momentous occasion are:

J. J. Pickle, Congressman from the Tenth Congressional District, and Mrs. Pickle.

Bob Poage, Congressman from the Eleventh Congressional District, and Mrs. Poage.

Federal District Judge Homer Thornberry and Mrs. Thornberry.

John Peace, member of the Public Safety Commission, and Mrs. Peace.

Former Governor Price Daniel and Mrs. Daniel.

The Presiding Officer then recognized Senator Hardeman and he addressed the Senate and distinguished guests as follows:

Mr. President of the United States:

This is an inspiring and moving occasion for Texas.

This fine gathering is indicative of the genuine pride we all have in you, our fellow-Texan, who has gone from the Pedernales to the Potomac, through dedication to your State and Country.

Your apprenticeship in leading began as a member of the National House of Representatives. Advancing to the United States Senate, you quickly became the most effective Majority Leader in our Nation's history, through your philosophy of "reasoning together." Then, as Vice President and now as President, you have demonstrated your abiding interest in improving the lot of your fellow-man, both at home and throughout the world.

Your legislative, diplomatic, political and native abilities, together with your masterful skill in the science of government, have provided you with experience available to no other man on the American scene—a source of knowledge essential and peculiar to the Office of President.

These qualities, and your patriotism gave assurance and confidence, as the reins of our country passed into your capable hands eighteen months ago. Your strength was comfort to "the flaming ramparts of the world" amid the sadness of the dark and tragic event when your predecessor was slain, and our distinguished Governor seriously wounded.

With your steadily upward climb in public service you have been blessed, as have often most great men, by a faithful helpmeet. You proudly acknowledge that since college days, the charming, intelligent and understanding companionship of "Lady Bird" Johnson has profoundly influenced your course and career.

It was my honor a good many years ago to present you to a San Angelo audience and, later, at a 1959 testimonial dinner in Memphis, Tennessee, honoring my father. I recall my expressed hopes and the accuracy of my predictions, on both such occasions. I said then that as Texas' most famous living son and the Nation's most important figure, you would be utilized in a greater field of service to the American people for the everlasting good of mankind.

The record of illustrious actions is most safely deposited in the universal remembrances of mankind. Our object, by the unveiling of your portrait in this Chamber, is to show our deep appreciation of your notable achievements.

We wish that whosoever, in all coming time, may behold your likeness will reflect upon the tremendous problems with which you have been beset and will continue to be faced during the next seven and one-half years as our President. We wish that this portrait may proclaim the magnitude and importance—encompass your role—as our President, in domestic, as well as in international affairs.

We wish that infancy may learn the purpose of its display from maternal lips; that middle-age may look upon it and be proud of its contributions and toil; and that weary and withered years may behold it—solaced by the history it represents.

We pray that in days of national despondency that our patriotism may turn its eyes hitherward and be assured that the foundations of our national power are strong in your command.

We hope that your growing influence of enlightened sentiment may establish the permanent peace of the world for which you so earnestly strive.

It is indeed a singular and touching tribute that while in the fullness of our country's happiness, we offer this painting in your honor—not as a mere work of art or memorial of glory, but for our country's own existence, which you symbolize.

And now, as this picture is presented, let us indulge an honest exultation of pride in you. This pride is sobered only by the knowledge of the awesome responsibility that is ours.

The last hope of mankind rests with America. If it should be proclaimed that our example has become an argument against the experiment of representative government, the knell of popular liberty would be sounded throughout the earth. The great trust of our forefathers—the principle of free governments which adheres to the American soil—has descended to you.

In your time there remains to us the great duties of defense, preservation and improvement. Let us advance the arts of peace and the works of peace. Pursuing these high objectives under Destiny's assignment, let us act under a settled conviction that our fifty states are one country. Let our conception be enlarged to the circle of our duties, and let us extend our ideas over the whole of the vast field in which we are called to act.

May this portrait of you, displayed in this magnificent temple of government upon which Texans, and the world, may gaze with admiration, remind us of our charge.

I, therefore, on behalf of the generous and public-spirited donors, present to the Senate of Texas this portrait of the 36th President of these United States.

Thank you.

Senators Moore and Crump then unveiled the Portrait of the President of the United States.

The Presiding Officer then recognized Lieutenant Governor Preston Smith and he accepted the Portrait of the President of the United States as follows:

Mr. President, Governor Connally, Dean Aikin, Senator Hardeman, Senator Krueger, Members of the Senate and House of Representatives, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen:

The only feeling that a Texan could have at this moment is one of deep pride and one of gratitude.

We are proud of our native son, the President of the United States, and we are proud of the world-wide prestige he has already earned in that high office. As a matter of fact, Texas basks in the reflection of his accomplishments.

We are grateful that this man in his position of eminence is still quick to acknowledge his Texas heritage.

And we are also grateful today that in this modest way we can show our appreciation and we can show our respect for Lyndon B. Johnson, statesman, President, fellow Texan.

Conscious of the honor afforded me by virtue of the Office of Lieutenant Governor of Texas, I accept this portrait on behalf of the Senate, the State, and the people of Texas.

The Presiding Officer (Senator Aikin in the Chair) presented the Honorable John Connally, Governor of the State of Texas, as follows:

The Chair now has the honor and privilege of presenting to you a great American, a great Texan, and one of the greatest Governors this State has ever had, to present our most distinguished Texan, the Honorable John Connally, Governor of Texas.

The Honorable John Connally, Governor of the State of Texas, then presented the President of the United States as follows:

It is my great privilege to present to you a famous Texan, great American and warm personal friend. A man whose great courage shows the determination of all Americans to preserve the interest of free men in the world. His courageous leadership is a note of pride to all of us and all Americans. It is a high honor and great personal privilege that I present to you the President of the United States, Lyndon B. Johnson.

The President of the United States addressed the Senate as follows:

Senator Aikin, Governor Connally, Governor Smith, Speaker Barnes, my beloved friends of the Senate, the House, my fellow Americans:

This is a very thoughtful and generous thing for you to do and I appreciate so very much, Governor Smith, the great honor that you accord me and the great privilege you give me in inviting me here this morning.

It is an unexpected but very welcome pleasure to be here with you in the Capitol of the State of Texas.

I wasn't sure whether I could get in this morning since, after all, as you know I am by profession a school teacher, but I am especially glad to be here with the Texas Senate.

There are very few deliberative bodies that have the reputation that you Members of the Senate have—charity toward one another. Not only do you sit with each other and debate with each other, and vote with each other, but now it seems that you decided next year you will all run against each other.

Several days ago my secretary from San Angelo came into my office and said we had received a telegram from Dorsey Hardeman from San Angelo. I assumed, of course, that it was one of Dorsey's frequent expressions of support for my domestic program. But my secretary said, "No, Mr. President, it is an invitation to a hanging." And I said, rather cautiously, "Whose?" She replied, "Yours." But knowing Dorsey for so long and understanding his views about Presidents and Governors, I said, "So what else is new?"

The hanging of my portrait may be a little setback for Lady Bird's beautification program, but I want all of you to know that I appreciate this very much, and I am very grateful to each of you.

This State Capitol—and the Chambers of this Texas Legislature—have a very special meaning for me. It was here, at my father's side, I was first exposed to the strength, and the vitality, and the enduring value of our system of representative democracy.

From that day to this, I have been dedicated—as I shall be while there is breath in me—to that system's strength, and its stability, and its success.

Today, I believe that all of us can and should be proud that both politically and economically our system is succeeding as it has never before. At the courthouse, and the statehouse, and the White House, we are working together with mutual respect—if not always mutual agreement. And that is, I think, as it should always be.

The deep divisions among us are diminishing. We are coming to be—as we were meant to be—one nation and one people, knowing no North, no South, no East, no West, no creed, no color, no class, or no caste.

As a result of this spirit, we enjoy today the greatest prosperity in the history of the American nation.

For more than 51 consecutive months, we have had the longest peacetime expansion America has ever known.

The value of what this nation produces—its gross national product—has increased 30%. The number of jobs has grown by 5.3 million. The personal income of our citizens has gained 28%. Corporate profits—after taxes—have risen 87%. For the first time in our national history, savings and assets of individuals have passed finally the one trillion dollar mark, and also, for the first time in our history, per capita income in Texas has passed the $2000 mark.

Now, all of this has been accomplished with the most stable prices that exist in the western world. This is good. This is strength—and we shall need it.

What we stand for and what we believe in, and what we value most dearly is challenged on many fronts. We know not the hour or the day when enemies of human progress may seek to impose their will on free men near and far. But in the words of the Scripture, we as a nation shall be "instant in season and out of season"—prepared, alert, ready and willing to make certain that aggression does not pay, that subversion does not succeed.

Where we have given our word in other corners of the world, we shall keep it. Where free men ask our help, we shall answer their call. We shall be just, and we shall be prudent, and we shall also be prompt and brave, for we are determined here in America that peace shall not perish, and the cause of freedom shall not be failed.

Thank you very much.

S. C. R. No. 125, Granting Ella Quante Hancock permission to sue the State of Texas.

Whereas, Ella Quante Hancock, a feme sole, is the owner of one acre of land, claimed as her homestead and occupied by her at the address known as Star Route A, Box 30, Austin, Texas, located adjacent to and North of U. S.-Texas Highway No. 290 approximately five (5) miles West of the City of Austin, being some 200 to 300 feet East of the Brodie Lane Intersection with said U. S.-Texas Highway No. 290, in Travis County, Texas; and

Whereas, she maintains that such property and the buildings thereon have been damaged by the actions and omissions of the State Highway Department, its officers, agents, servants and employees in that in rebuilding and widening U. S.-Texas Highway No. 290 adjacent to her property the Texas State Highway Department caused the drainage structures and ditches along said highway to be built and constructed in such manner as to concentrate the run off of water during periods of heavy rainfall and discharge the same in an unnatural flow upon and across the property of Ella Quante Hancock and said Texas State Highway Department has failed to properly maintain the drainage structures and ditches along said highway adjacent to her property to properly carry and discharge the surface waters in time of heavy rainfall and causing such surface water to flow over and across her property in concentrated and unnatural flow whereby the land and the Improvements thereof Ella Quante Hancock have been and are being severely damaged.

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved by the Senate of Texas, The House of Representatives Concurring That:

Ella Quante Hancock, a feme sole, is hereby given permission to sue the State of Texas, and to recover judgment therefor for any damage suffered by reason of the actions and failure of the State Highway Department of Texas to act as set out above.

"Section 2-A. After January 1, 1967, the successor to each Navigation Commissioner shall be elected for a six-year term of office. The Board of Navigation Commissioners shall inform the Commissioners Court and County Judge in writing of the date of expiration of the term of each Navigation Commissioner. More than 60 days before a term expires, the Commissioners Court shall order the County Judge to call an election to elect the successor of the Navigation Commissioner whose term is expiring. Except as provided in this Section, the election shall be conducted as provided in Section 2 of this Act."

Section 2. The amendment contained in Section 1 of this Act does not affect the terms of office of members of the Board of Navigation Commissioners of the Calhoun County Navigation District.

Section 3. The importance of this legislation and the crowded condition of the Calendars in both Houses create an emergency and an imperative public necessity that the Constitutional Rule requiring bills to be read on three several days in each House be suspended, and this Rule is hereby suspended, and that this Act take effect and be in force from and after its passage, and it is so enacted.

Senate Concurrent Resolution 70 on Second Reading

The Presiding Officer laid before the Senate on its second reading and passage to engrossment:

S. C. R. No. 70, Providing a committee to direct compilation of "The Texas Capitol," a brochure for distribution to visitors.

The resolution was read.

Senator Hightower offered the following amendment to the resolution:

Amend S. C. R. 70 by striking out all the Whereas clauses and by substituting in lieu thereof the following:

Whereas, the Tourist Information Center operated by the Texas Highway Department in the rotunda of the Capitol has served approximately 125,000 visitors since it was opened in July, 1964; and

Whereas, The average number of tourists during week days, when the Legislature is in session, has totaled around 300, while on weekends, visitors approach 500 per day; in summer months, the average goes up to 600 during week days and about 1,100 per day on weekends; and

Whereas, The information material presented to these Capitol guests, a large number of whom are school children, students of history and social studies classes, is effective, but an inspiring, comprehensive brochure, modeled after that prepared by the House of Representatives of the United States Congress at the suggestion of former Texas Congressman Frank Ikard, now a member of The University of Texas Board of Regents, would emphasize the importance of their Capitol visit for these young citizens by firmly implanting in their minds an association between the practice and tradition of current government and the politics and ideals of our founding fathers; and

Whereas, An omnibus brochure such as that envisioned would serve to stimulate interest in the Texas heritage, symbolized by the Capitol and surrounding buildings which form the seat of Texas government; and

Whereas, This document could be prepared to include archival photographs, sketches, new photographic shots and scenes of current historic significance—pictures of the Legislature in session, inaugural ceremonies, visits of dignitaries from other states and foreign lands, and the like—similar to those contained in the Congressional publication, "The Capitol, Symbol of Freedom," and the basic and historical material contained would form the nucleus of new editions as might be indicated by demand; and

Whereas, The educational value to Texas citizens is not the only dividend such a brochure would offer: it would be of inestimable value in augmenting the new Texas program to encourage the tourist industry in this State by attracting tourists through the kind of "take home" material which they desire and frequently request in letters of inquiry; and

Whereas, Cost to the State of Texas in the preparation of a publication of the type planned would be minimal, as in all probability the Texas experience would follow the pattern established by the national document, which is now in its third edition, and has actually yielded a profit to the Government on sales, at 50c each, of $7,380; and

Whereas, It is appropriate that the Legislature of the State of Texas should provide the leadership and the direction necessary to satisfy the deep hunger for an inspirational document about the State Capitol which the thousands of tourists to the seat of government bring with them; now therefore be it

The amendment was read and was adopted.

Senator Hightower offered the following amendment to the resolution:

Amend S. C. R. No. 70 by striking out all the Resolving clauses and by substituting in lieu thereof the following:

Resolved, by the Senate of the State of Texas, the House of Representatives concurring, That the Texas Legislative Council prepare a brochure on the State Capitol, to be published at no cost to the state but to be an official legislative document sold by the publishing house becoming the successful bidder on the project; and be it further

Resolved, That the Texas Legislative Council present the brochure to the State Board of Control, and that the State Board of Control, by competitive bid, authorize the printing and the sale, in the State Capitol and elsewhere, of the brochure; and be it further

Resolved, That the Texas Highway Department, the Texas State Library, the Director of Texana Programs, Humanities Research Center of The University of Texas, and other state agencies and departments deemed necessary by the Council, cooperate fully with the Council in preparing the brochure.

The amendment was read and was adopted.

The resolution as amended was then adopted.
